UCSF and City Sign "Memorandum of Understanding"

UCSF and the City of San Francisco have signed a "Memorandum of Understanding" (MOU) regarding master planning, construction and real estate utilization, it has been announced by Mayor Dianne Feinstein and Chancellor Julius R. Krevans, MD. The intent of the MOU is to "foster harmonious relations between the City and the University regarding growth and development of UCSF facilities within the City's borders," they declared.

The principal concerns are the responsibilities of the City and UCSF for oversight of land use and the development, maintenance and use of physical facilities without abrogating the provisions of the State Constitution with regard to each.

Among the points of the MOU are:

- UCSF staff and the City Planning Commission staff will meet at least once a year to review long-range development plans for UCSF and City development and services plans.
- UCSF will advise the City in writing of all matters concerning master planning, construction and real property utilization initiated by UCSF which may have an impact on the City. The City Planning Commission will review such proposals and advise UCSF in writing as to the conformance of such development with the Master Plan of San Francisco and Planning Code.
- UCSF will maintain campus advisory committees, composed of neighborhood representatives, at both its Parnassus Heights and Laurel Heights campuses and will invite the City Planning Commission, Municipal Railway and Department of Public Works to participate in those meetings.

New Emergency Response System Being Developed by UCSF and SF Fire Department

UCSF and the SF Fire Department are developing a plan for an emergency response system that will meet the needs of both agencies and could become a model for other institutions and buildings in the city.

The plan is being developed by Division Chief James Olson of the SF Fire Department; Reynold H. Brown, MD, director of the UCSF Environmental Health & Safety Office; Robert Reisig, acting chief of UCSF Police; with cooperation from Robert Stepp of the SF Department of Public Health.

The plan calls for campus police, who are on duty 24 hours a day, to be trained and equipped to meet the fire fighters when they arrive, lead the fire fighters to the site of the fire, and refer to information already posted as to who is in charge and the contents of the room.

The UCSF Environmental Health & Safety Office will have staff on-call 24 hours a day to respond immediately to telephone calls and be able to arrive on campus within one hour. The system also will apply to the Laurel Heights campus when the School of Pharmacy moves in.

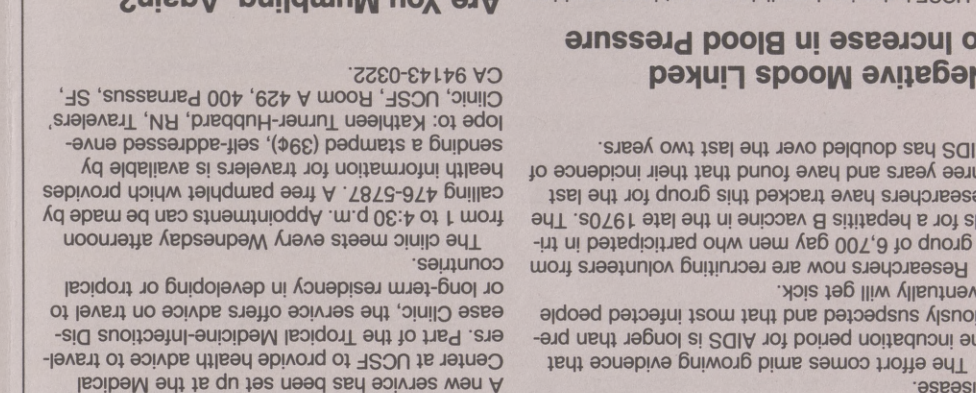
At the same time, UCSF will be developing a computerized information system which will have the capacity for on-line access to campus police and the SF Fire Department, providing instant information on contents for each laboratory, who is responsible, and how to contact them.

The plan is being developed to create a more effective way of dealing with fire alarms in UCSF's research laboratories, following a small fire which broke out at 4 a.m. on January 20. That fire was brought under control immediately by the automatic sprinkler system. There was minor damage primarily due to water, no one was injured, and no radiation leak occurred. However, there was a time delay while campus police tried to find the names of scientists in charge.

A major part of the program will be a plan in which the UCSF EH&S Office will provide an orientation program to some 200 fire fighters from the responding stations for both the UCSF Parnassus and Laurel Heights campuses, and for campus police.

"We are delighted with this new development with UCSF, the Fire Department and the Department of Public Health working together on this plan, which we may eventually be able to extend to all buildings in the city," said SF Fire Department Chief Edward Phipps.

"Our past relations with UCSF have been good, with the exception of a few minor problems, and we feel this new emergency plan is a great step forward."



After successfully undergoing lithotripsy at UCSF for his kidney stones, Beaker the penguin has become such a hero, the Medical Center at UCSF has invited him back to be the mascot for their 80th birthday celebration on April 4th. (See story below.) Visiting Beaker at his home at the San Francisco Zoo are (left) Jeanne Moslener and (right) German Vazquez, members of the staff of the Urinary Stone Center at UCSF, where Beaker underwent the high-tech "stone-crushing" technique formally called "extracorporeal shock wave lithotripsy," or ESWL. In the center we see zookeeper Jane Tollini.

80th Birthday Party for the Med Center's First Patient on Parnassus Will Highlight Founders Day Celebration

The UCSF Medical Center will celebrate the 80th anniversary of the first patient cared for on the Parnassus site as the kickoff to the sixth annual Founders Day, commemorating the founding of the campus 114 years ago.

The Med Center birthday party is Saturday, April 4, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. — and the whole neighborhood is invited. The party is free and so is the parking, so bring the kids and come on up!

The celebration will take place on both sides of Parnassus. In the Millberry Union gym there'll be a big, old-fashioned 1907-type picnic and a huge birthday cake — our treat — plus ice cream and snacks. There'll be entertainment, plenty of souvenirs, and guest celebrities including Beaker, the penguin from the San Francisco Zoo who was cured of his kidney stones at the Medical Center.

Across Parnassus in Long/Moffitt Hospitals, the theme for the birthday party — "80 Years of Caring" — will come to life with exhibits, multimedia shows and tours of hospital areas, including surgery, the clinical laboratories, the latest imaging technology and much, much more!

The UCSF Founders Day celebration will extend through Friday, April 10, with a number of programs that pay tribute to faculty, staff, students and friends.

The 30th Faculty Research Lecture, open to the public, will be given by UCSF sociologist Anselm L. Strauss, on Thursday, April 9, at 2 p.m. in Cole Hall, 513 Parnassus. Professor Strauss pioneered research on the process of dying and care of the terminally ill as far back as 1960.

At an invitational banquet on Thursday evening, the prestigious UCSF Medal will be presented to four outstanding individuals for their contributions to society, science and/or health care: Mrs. David (Sallie) Allen, Dr. Arnold O. Beckman, Dr. William L. Gee and Walter H. Sullivan, Jr.

A poster by California artist David Lance Goines commemorating Founders Day will be available for purchase at the UCSF Bookstore.

UCSF First to Test AIDS Drugs on Healthy Gays

UCSF researchers will be the first anywhere to test possible treatments next month on men who have the AIDS virus, but show no symptoms of AIDS or AIDS-related complex (ARC).

The researchers hope these early treatments, involving the drugs AZT and acyclovir, will prevent the men from developing AIDS and provide hope for the up to two million more Americans who are thought to be infected with the virus of this fatal disease.

The effort comes amid growing evidence that the incubation period for AIDS is longer than previously suspected and that most infected people eventually will get sick.

Researchers now are recruiting volunteers from a group of 6,700 gay men who participated in trials for a hepatitis B vaccine in the late 1970s. The researchers have tracked this group for the last three years and have found that their incidence of AIDS has doubled over the last two years.

Negative Moods Linked to Increase in Blood Pressure

A UCSF behavioral medicine expert is researching ways in which some people with mild hypertension can lower their blood pressure without medication.

In his research, Thomas J. Coates, PhD, director of the UCSF Behavioral Medicine Unit has found that negative moods—including tension, hostility and depression—and negative perceptions of the environment could cause blood pressure to rise. Learning how to decrease stress or alter these moods—along with other lifestyle changes such as diet and exercise—might help some people with mild hypertension maintain their blood pressure at safe levels.

In a study coauthored by Coates in a recent issue of Health Psychology it was reported that in 28 teenage boys with mild hypertension their blood pressure correlated with their emotional state as they engaged in routine activities. The subjects were asked to wear blood pressure monitors for 24 hours and to complete a mood survey every 30 minutes during their waking hours.

The study found that negative moods—particularly hostility and depression—were related to changes in blood pressure.

Coates and other researchers working in the UCSF Mild Hypertension Project are using a similar ambulatory blood pressure monitoring device to study adults. Anyone interested in participating in the study should call 476-5446.

Are You Mumbling, Again?

Do you often blame your family members or friends because they just "don't speak up" or "mumble?" It may not be a problem with their speaking. It may be a problem with your hearing.

Many people do not deal with hearing loss because they don't know exactly what to do or where to go for help. First, you should go to a medical doctor who specializes in ear problems. If you do not have one, call the UCSF Ear Nose and Throat Clinic (ENT) at 476-4213 and make an appointment.

If it has been determined that your hearing loss can be helped, then your physician or the ENT Clinic should transfer you to the UCSF Audiology Clinic on the seventh floor of the Ambulatory Care Center, 400 Parnassus Avenue. There, you will be examined by an audiologist who will describe precisely the nature and extent of the hearing loss. You then will be evaluated for a hearing aid.

For further information call the Audiology Clinic at the Medical Center at UCSF at 476-5101.

Health Advice for Travelers

A new service has been set up at the Medical Center at UCSF to provide health advice to travelers. Part of the Tropical Medicine-Infectious Disease Clinic, the service offers advice on travel to or long-term residency in developing or tropical countries.

The clinic meets every Wednesday afternoon from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Appointments can be made by calling 476-5787. A free pamphlet which provides health information for travelers is available by sending a stamped (39¢), self-addressed envelope to: Kathleen Turner-Hubbard, RN, Travelers' Clinic, UCSF, Room A 429, 400 Parnassus, SF, CA 94143-0322.

The study is being conducted by UCSF, the SF Department of Public Health and the National Centers for Disease Control. The Health Department's special hotline to handle inquiries is 800-537-3722.
